

Children's University Philosophy

Children's University has adopted a philosophy that encourages young people to engage with learning activities and to gain benefit from participating.

The aim is to raise the self-esteem of students to enable them to believe in themselves as effective learners, which will lead to an increased level of confidence, enabling students to reach their potential in all areas.

Fundamentally, the purpose of Cardiff Children's University is to promote activities that develop 'the whole child' and to award credits for participation rather than the traditional educational models of rewarding achievement against predetermined standards
